Orchid Awards & OCTA Awards

Presented by

Ohio Community Theater Association

Southwest Region

and

Association of Community Theaters Cincinnati

OCTA (Ohio Community Theatre Association) holds annual regional theater competitions. The Southwest Region of OCTA (of which Cincinnati is a part) is one of the largest in the Ohio with 20 plus theater groups as members.

About Orchid Awards

ACT (Association of Community Theater); upon request by a member community theater group, will send three responders to critique all aspects of a production, from cast members' performances to lobby displays, from technical aspects to program design. The goal of inviting responders is to help member groups increase the quality of their performances, both onstage and offstage. Winning an Orchid Award is a bonus. The critiques give areas or aspects of a production positive feedback, encouragement and praise. The critiques are also used to determine if any individual, group or aspect of a production will win an Orchid Award for that production.

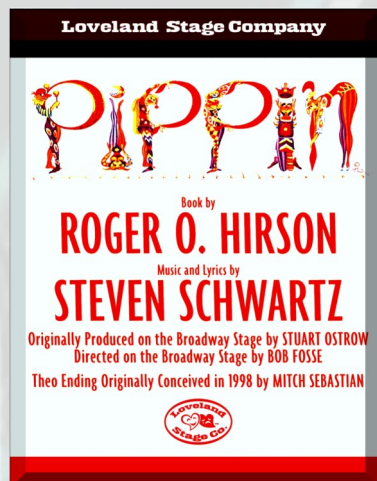

To be considered nominated for an Orchid Award one responder has to nominate the person, group or aspect, for the award. If two or three responders nominate then the Orchid Award is won.

ACT of Cincinnati presents Glenna Knapp with the prestigious Mario Pitocco Award

On Saturday, June 23rd (at OCTAFEST) ACT of Greater Cincinnati presented Glenna Knapp with The Mario Pitocco Award. This award preserves and encourages innovative technical theatre in memory of Mario Pitocco, and is presented annually to honor an individual who has shown continuous service and excellence in creative technical theatre, including, but not limited to: costuming, house management, lighting or sound program, props, set décor, set design, set construction, stage management, etc.

To follow is the application written and submitted to ACT by Carissa Sloan for Glenna's nomination. The Prompter could find no better words to use in describing Glenna and her many talents than those written by Carissa, so with her permission we share them with you.

When I think of the words "to preserve and encourage innovative technical theatre...show(ing) continuous service and excellence in creative technical theatre," one person at Loveland Stage Company (LSC) stands out as a perfect example: Glenna Knapp. Glenna grew up in the world of musical theatre; her parents performed with the Cincinnati Opera Guild. She even performed as a child, doing The Mikado in Glendale. Glenna has been a staple at LSC for 32 years and counting. She started out at LSC as a crew member: helping set up, tear down, move in and move out, as well as being a member of the backstage crew. Since then, Glenna has been an integral part of our backstage area in many roles: crew, lights, sound, special effects, props, you name it, she's done it. Though we have coaxed her out onto the stage once, just once, as the government scientist in L'il Abner, her main role backstage for many, many years at LSC, has been that of our beloved stage manager. She is a whiz at organizing all of the moving parts of sets and set pieces around our smaller space, and she lives for any opportunity to use her fog machine. We are blessed at LSC that she is one of our longtime techies. In fact, as long as I have been around our group (which is over 15 years), I can't recall any production that she has not helped out in some way, shape, or form. This is the pure definition of continuous service. As for excellence, Glenna and her crews have been recipients of many ACT Orchid Awards. However, this is certainly not the only way to measure excellence. Excellence is a part of Glenna. She goes all out when she works on a production and many times has helped brainstorm new ideas and techniques to pull off some technically difficult shows.

Encouraging innovative technical theater: Glenna is one of those rare individuals who encourages all aspects of technical theater. Seven years ago, when the founder of our youth summer theater workshop program could no longer be at the helm, Glenna stepped up to the plate. As a workshop program, Glenna took it upon herself not only to direct hundreds of kids over the years, but also to teach and encourage them about technical theater. She had youth who were actors, youth who ran the backstage area, youth who ran lights, sound, helped with costumes, etc.; those kids took on all the roles necessary to mount a full length production every summer. From The Mikado (a Gilbert and Sullivan opera) to Cats to West Side Story and more, the youth who participated in our summer workshops learned a lot about all of the aspects of theatre from Glenna.

Glenna also finds time in her busy schedule to help out at other theaters. She has been a Glendale Lyceum Dramatic Club member since 1965, starting out as a child actor, then helping with more behind the scenes roles like set construction. She volunteered at Village Stage Community Theater for eight years working behind the scenes in stage management, set building, and special effects. For eight years, she also helped out at her church's productions building stages and sets that had to be put up and torn down for each show. As a member and Lieutenant with the Loveland-Symmes Fire Department, Glenna worked in the Loveland Schools and community as a director and producer of fire safety programs. She also worked in the Loveland Schools as a consultant and master carpenter for Loveland Middle School Theater. More recently, she often lends a hand at Cincinnati Music Theatre as a part of tech crew, set construction, load in/out, and strike. She has also assisted with set construction, stage management, and techie extraordinaire with Milford Theatre Guild, Brieabi, and Downtown Theater Classic. Glenna is truly dedicated to the art of technical theatre within the greater Cincinnati Community Theatre scene.

It is clear that Glenna is amazingly talented and dedicated when it comes to technical theatre. I was curious as to why she loves it so much (as so many of us do). She told me, "The thrill of running a show behind the scenes gives me the same euphoria as many actor get with the lights hitting them, providing their audience with their talents. The magic of a performance truly is behind the scenes as the curtain doesn't open itself. As crew backstage dressed in black, we linger in dark corners so that those with talents for the lights on stage can enter unimpeded, and exit the stage to a light coming from that dark corner. Techies are a different breed and usually congregate together discussing the upcoming set changes of how many more times we need to roll this in or lift this up. All of these individuals coming together from all areas to put on good theater for the general public. This is why I love Community Theatre." Glenna Knapp is the epitome of a techie, dedicated to continuous service and excellence in the field of technical theatre, and is deserving of the Mario Pitacco Award.

Congratulations Glenna to an honor well earned.
